The precursor groups to the Original Dixieland Jazz Band (the name by which it became widely known after several alternative iterations) formed in New Orleans. The ensemble came together for a date at Schiller's Cafe in Chicago on Fri. 3rd Mar. 1916 under the name Stein's Dixie Jass Band. The band's popularity and acclaim grew and it came to wider prominence during a date at Reisenweber's Café in Manhattan starting on Sat. 27th Jan. 1917, just before the USA entered the Great War on Fri. 6th Apr. 1917. ## REISENWEBER'S

COLUMBUS CIRCLE & 58TH STREET

Four days after opening, the band auditioned for the Columbia label, but no record was issued. A month after that first audition, on Mon. 26th Feb. 1917, just as the Russian Revolution was getting underway, the band went into the Victor recording studio. Two sides were announced on Wed. 7th Mar 1917, Dixieland Jass Band One-Step and Livery Stable Blues (Wikipedia links), released in May, and became recognized as the first commercial jazz records ever. Legal issues were evident even at that early stage of the recording industry, as you may learn at those links.

With their first recording a smash hit, the band went on to greater things, which involved the personnel changes and legal fights one has come to expect in the music business. There is a summary on the Syncopated Times website that has a titles list and a personnel list. On the same website, Colin Hancock makes the case that there may have been jazz records before ODJB!

In four parts, the series totals just short of an hour and twenty minutes. There is also a text discussion of the ODJB legacy, plus the part nationality, ethnicity, and history played in the development of jazz music.

This number is a positive sensation wherever it is played!

The ODJB has been caught in commentator crossfire over the years. The standing and place of the band in the prevailing culture has been questioned, but currently its standing and place in history seems to be widely accepted. Meanwhile, the music is there to be enjoyed.

"A brass band gone crazy!"

That's the way a wag describes the original Dixieland "Jass" Band. Beyond that description we can't tell you what a "Jass" Band is because we don't know ourselves.

As for what it does—it makes dancers want to dance more—and more - and yet more! Just have another look at the picture above—you can almost hear the hilarious music of the "Jass" Band in your ears.

You'll want to hear the first Victor Record by this organized disorganization—it's a "winner." "Livery Stable Blues," a fox trot, and "Dixieland Jass Band One-Step" are played with charming ferocity and penetration.
